WAR 'BIG BUSINESS'

WOULD SEIZE INDUSTRIES

and Transportation to Be Made Government Agencies

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—National defense plans of the war department contemplate government control of the entire resources of the country under "an efficiency council or board of control." General Pershing announced here tonight, speaking at Madison Square Garden before the Merchants association of New York.

Under the proposed plan, the government would take over the production of munitions, food, clothing, and other necessities of war. The government would also take over the transportation of these supplies. The plan would also give the government control over the entire economy of the country.

The initial organization and the system to be adopted should soon be in such tangible form that the personnel could be selected and organized in readiness to take up their duties when needed.

It is the duty of the war department to study the general needs of the country in both men and material to meet the exigencies of war. The conclusions place certain obligations upon the army personnel, in addition to its duty as an arm of the administration, from a consideration of which the strength of the army can be determined. But our recommendations often go unheeded, partly because these holding the purse strings will not understand, and partly because in the past it has been a more or less popular thing to cry out against the army as being militaristic or as dangerous to the liberties of the people, or such ridiculous plea that might appeal to the ignorant voter.

Discussing the function of business in war, General Pershing said: "That the conduct of war is a big business enterprise which involves knowledge of business principles on the part of leaders was vividly brought out during the World war, and preliminary preparation necessary to carry on to success once we become involved in war should appeal to every business man."

"It is regrettable that a greater number of business men with vision do not make the sacrifice and enter public life, during peace, and give their countrymen the benefit of their practical business experience in the management of both national and international affairs, instead of leaving those duties to the professional politician."

WHY EUROPE TAKES FLYING
SO SERIOUSLY

Has it occurred to you that there may be a reason behind the wonderful development of commercial aviation in Europe, while it seems to stand still in the United States? Have you wondered?

Why France subsidizes passenger air lines to London, Warsaw, Holland, Morocco, and plans a service to Constantinople?

Why the countries of Europe are strongly backing commercial companies, operating passenger service at a loss?

Why they are selling airplanes to other countries at less than the cost to manufacture?

Federal Prisoner
Hired Substitute
At $10 Per Day

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The attention of President Harding has been called through an appeal for clemency to an unusual occurrence in Cleveland, Ohio—the employment of a federal prisoner, at a substitute to serve his sentence at the rate of $10 a day.

The appeal for clemency, first made to the president several weeks ago, and renewed today, was in behalf of a third man who has been convicted in Cleveland for conspiracy in connection with a loan made to the federal offender by which he was able to hire his substitute. The story was considered by the president when first told him as scarcely believable, but the one who made the request for clemency for the petitioner, assured the president not only was it true in all its details, but that the practice of hiring substitutes by convicted prisoners was not uncommon in several states, and that the standard pay of the substitute was $10 a day.

Convinced that the representations were based on facts, and that some collusion involving federal officials must exist, the president asked the department of justice to look into the matter, and is now awaiting a report.

WALTON CONFERS

Purpose of Meeting
in Capital

SPEAKER RACE IS ON

Another State Bonus Bill
Will Be Initiated in Near Future

By the Associated Press Staff Wire.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 17.—Governor-elect J. C. Walton held a two-hour conference at the state capitol this afternoon with Governor Robertson.

Neither would comment on the purpose or the outcome of the meeting, although it was understood that the discussion took in some of the problems faced by the head of the incoming administration.

Walton left the governor's office about 4:30 o'clock following a short talk with Joe O'Brien, executive secretary, and James C. Vance, candidate for speaker pro tempore of the house.

Leaders of the Farmer-Labor Reconstruction league were reported to have held a meeting here to discuss the selection of a speaker of the house. It is understood the league will put behind one of the candidates already in the race.

Murray F. Gibbons of Purcell, who is believed to have the backing of J. O. Miller, manager of the league, is reported to be the man to whom the league's support will be thrown.

Dave Stovall of Hugo, and W. E. Disney of Muskogee are in the race for the speakership. It is said, each hoping for the support of Walton.

There has been speculation in some quarters about the possibility of an effort to put over some member of the anti-administration.

G. S. Long of Tulsa and Charles Baskin of Nowata are among the aspirants for the speakership. It is said, reports were circulated today that R. L. Knie of Cordell is slated to succeed A. S. J. Shaw, as secretary to the commissioners of the school land department. Shaw retires the first of December.

JUDGE TO PROBE
WRIGHT HEARINGHepburn Will Ask Court to Set Aside Governor's Venue Decision

By the Associated Press Staff Wire.
OKMULGEE, Nov. 17.—The court clerk's office here was in receipt this morning of the order of Chief Justice John E. Harrison, of the supreme court of Oklahoma, authorizing Judge Thomas Edwards, of Cordell, to hold court in Okmulgee for a week, beginning Monday.

James Hepburn, county attorney, announced that a motion would be filed by the state, presently Monday morning, asking the court to set aside the ruling made by Judge Lucien B. Wright, of Sapulpa, yesterday, granting Gov. J. B. Robertson a change of venue to Pontotoc county.

Judge Edwards will hear the motion, and if the decision is favorable to the state, will then set the date for hearing the motion for a change of venue. Hepburn has indicated in court that he may not contest the removal of the case from this county.

His fight on the ruling of Judge Wright is based upon the allegation that judge was not qualified to act in the case, and that defense attorneys did not give the state proper notice of the motion.

In the event Judge Edwards upholds Judge Wright's decision, the governor's trial, which was scheduled to open on Wednesday by Judge Wright, will probably meet with further delay. Hepburn announced that under no condition would the state be ready to proceed by that time, because of the fact that witnesses must be obtained from all over the state.

HE LAUDS SHIP SUBSIDY

Says America Cannot Com-

Basis Is an Equitable One

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—While business conditions in the United States and throughout the world are generally unsettled because of uncertainty over the European situation, it is nevertheless not up to the United States to call any world economic conference such as has been proposed from time to time, Charles M. Schwab, steel magnate, said today in an interview with an International News Service correspondent.

"I am a firm believer," said the millionaire steel head, "in the principles laid down by the men who founded this country, of no entangling alliances abroad."

At variance with Gary, in opposing any general conference of the industrial nations, Schwab took a position directly opposed to Judge E. H. Gary, head of the United States Steel corporation, who in an address to a gathering of steel men a few weeks ago, advocated the calling of such a conference by President Harding.

"The nation," said Schwab, "is endowed with great natural resources which we should turn into gold. And while I believe we should adopt a helpful attitude toward other nations, I do not believe we should take a position of being responsible for the welfare of the world."

The immediate passage of the ship subsidy bill by congress will give a great impetus to American business, Schwab believes. He said his own company, the Bethlehem Steel company, was forced to give contracts abroad to foreign ships to carry iron ore because there were no American ships available.

"It is impossible for us to compete with the commerce of the world on the same footing," he said, "unless we get our shipping on the same basis as theirs."

"We are the workshop of the world. We are the foodshop of the world. It is not less than absurd not to have our own ships out getting a fair share of the world's commerce."

Schwab said he was unable to understand the attitude toward other nations, the great grain belt of the country, is opposed to the ship subsidy.

"The margin between good business and bad business," he said, "is only a few per cent. Export can furnish this margin and a strong and efficient merchant marine."

Miss Alice Back
In Capital; Not
Peeved, She Says

Special to The World.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Miss Alice Robertson has not lost any of her popularity in political because the wheels of political fortune rolled against her last week. The Oklahoma congresswoman came back to Washington today ready to take up her work next week. She came unannounced, on a train that arrived four hours late.

When Miss Robertson arrived at her office she began to meet her colleagues. Some of them too, had had the sting of defeat last week. Everywhere, she was greeted warmly.

"I haven't shed a tear over the election," Miss Robertson said. "It is a load lifted from my shoulders."

Miss Alice once, in her office, began to sort out a great batch of mail that had accumulated, in her absence.

"I will have a busy day tomorrow," she said, as she laughed through the correspondence. "I am feeling fine and ready for the opening of the session. My friends tell me I look better and brighter than at any time since I began my first race for congress, and I feel it."

DENIED HIS DOPE,

in County Jail, Hangs
by Belt to His Cot

NECK BREAKS IN FALL

He Fastened Belt to Top Bunk in Cell, Around Neck, Then Jumped; Pulmotor Fails

Half crazed at being held by the federal authorities in the county jail without his "dope," R. C. Trout, arrested in Bristol Thursday for violations of the narcotic act, committed suicide in jail Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock by hanging himself by his belt from the top deck of the steel cot in his cell.

With only four feet from the top railing in which he swung himself clear of the floor, Trout fastened the belt around the iron rod and then after slipping it around his neck he doubled up in a sitting position and dropped, breaking his neck. He barely cleared the bottom deck by an inch.

Other prisoners in jail declared that the man had been sitting quietly in his cell for some time, and they did not notice him particularly until he was hanging from the top of the cot, his legs dangling, hanging from the iron bed with his knees clamped in his arms.

He left no note, or message before he killed himself, authorities said.

Attaches of the jail reached Trout few seconds after he dropped, but his neck was broken and the man was dying then. A pulmotor was summoned, but after an hour it failed to revive him.

When turned over to the United States deputy marshal's office here, Trout admitted that he had been selling morphine and 27 capsules were taken from him when he was arrested.

Trout appeared to be about 35 years old, and is said to have a wife living in Okmulgee. No papers or letters that would throw light on the man's past were found in his pockets.

Authorities here declared last night that they thought Trout was a member of the local dope peddlers that had been operating near Bristol for several weeks. Several men were arrested last week and brought to Tulsa.

HARD UP, ARMOUR EXPLAINS

In Interview, He Tells Harding That Packers Must Cut Off Expense to Survive

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—President Harding will make the final decision for the government on the proposal that Armour & Co. purchase Morris & Co., another of the "big five" Chicago packers, it was indicated today in high administration circles. The president already has discussed the matter with J. Ogden Armour and will go over it in detail with Secretary Wallace as soon as the experts of the department of agriculture have completed their study of the plan.

The executive was represented as being of the opinion now in his possession that there would be no objection at law to the proposed consolidation of the two packers, but that the government regulations of the packing industry provided for in the packers and stockyard control act, might be a hindrance.

The experts were understood to have asked for information supplementary to that originally furnished by Armour. This was presented by E. E. White, vice president and Charles E. Faudner, Jr., chief counsel for Armour & Co. Among other things under consideration, it was understood, was the probable effect of a projected merger upon the subsidiary corporations of the two principal companies.

Will Mean a Precedent.
The administration officers said that a favorable decision by the government on Armour's proposal would set a precedent in the case of consolidation of corporations in other lines of industry, such as that recently proposed in the case of General Electric and Westinghouse.

The plan planned to spend the night on board the Paris at quarantine, rising with the dawn, as is his custom, to await the reception committee selected to welcome him to the land he last visited half a century ago.

This committee, headed by Colonel E. M. House, a personal friend of Clemenceau, will go down the bay tomorrow morning, to take him aboard the municipal steamer Macon and land him at the Battery. The committee will include J. J. Jackson, French ambassador to Washington; Robert Woods Bliss, assistant secretary of state, representing the government; and Frank L. Polk, George W. Wickersham, Otto H. Kahn and Hamilton Fish Armstrong, representing the council on foreign relations, under the auspices of which the trip will be his New York address next Tuesday.

To Stay at Artist's Home.
Acting Mayor Hulbert, and other city officials, will welcome the former French premier at City Hall, then he will drive up a gently graded fifth avenue to the home of Charles Dana Gibson, in East Seventy-third street. The Gibsons have turned their home over to him for the five days he is to stay in New York.

From the time he reaches the Gibson home, until Tuesday, Clemenceau plans to keep as quiet and preserve as much of his strength as possible. He has declined dozens of invitations for receptions, dinners and luncheons.

Tulsa Flappers Buying Hair
To Replace Fluffy Tresses
Sacrificed to Dame Fashion

Bobbed hair is passé. Woman's crowning glory at its longest is superseding abbreviated locks in popularity and fluffier fashion is to blame.

It isn't so much that seeing to believe—yet, hair isn't supposed to grow faster than six inches a year, and it can't be expected to sprout at a greater rate just because long hair has suddenly become good style again. But meanwhile, what is the bobbed hair one to do? There are still bobbed heads that are not at all visible. Question is, how do they do it? Shush! Hear the shell-pink, ear lower and well-whisper the deep, dark secret of the hair.

They buy the hair and put it on top of the bob. About a pound of hair is one particular beauty shop in town that has sold more hair this week than it has in any other month for a long time past. Coronet braids that wind luxuriously around the "small and well-shaped head"—see any of the latest, best sellers for quite creditable results. All is not gold that glitters, and all is not blarney that stays in the kitchen. They come out of it some time and perch coolly over the ear of some reformed bobbed-head. These beauties are round effects produced by coils of hair that is bought at so much per strand, and placed at regular intervals about the head thus effectively beguiling the public into believing that the weaker never fell victim to the weakness of clipped locks.

It used to be, in the halcyon days, when to shake back one's head and feel the luxuriant freedom of marcelled bobbed locks was to know oneself in the height of fashion, that beauty parlors did from five to ten bobs a day. The floor was constantly carpeted with the severed hair, and the smiling, cheerfully sacrificed to the smoking altar of fashion. Now, in one beauty parlor alone, hasn't been a single bob for three weeks. The smoking altar smokes no longer. The embers have become gray ashes and the inexorable goddess of fashion, exacts new tribute. The scissors are laid on the shelf and the clever fingers of the beauty expert braid and twist and coil shining strands of hair, that are to make the gullible public forget that there ever was such a thing as bobbed hair.

For they must be fashionable.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 17.—It is reported here that the Angora government will make formal representations to Great Britain for the return of the sultan to the Kemalists, pointing out that only the great national assembly of Turkey has the right to depose a sultan, and that he must face trial as ordered by the government.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 17.—Rafat Fasha, the nationalist governor, has sent a message to Angora urging immediate convocation of the great national assembly to select a new caliph.

The sultan is likely candidate for the caliphate is considered to be Abdul Medjid, cousin of the sultan and heir to the Ottoman throne.

The flight of the sultan was almost precipitate, but nevertheless before he was made for him to have asylum on the dreadnaught.

The trip from the palace to the quay was effected without the sultan being seen by any of the guards about the palace, and a few automobiles which had been drawn up at a side entrance to the palace whirled him to the quay, where a barge from the British dreadnaught, the HMS Malaya, was waiting. On his way to the Malaya, the sultan was accompanied by his son and six members of the palace staff was immediately transferred to the Malaya, which pointed its nose out through the Bosphorus and into the Mediterranean on the way to Malta.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—A Russian dispatch confirming the flight of the sultan says that Mohammed VI was accompanied by his 10-year-old son, Prince Eltharoglou, and was dressed in civilian attire and feet. The crown prince and all the sultan's wives remained behind.

The sultan's automobile was followed by another containing British officers who were also dressed in mufti. The flight was effected in a heavy rain and only squads of British soldiers and a few scattering Turkish fishermen and palmiers were at the dock when the party arrived.

The sultan's voice broke with emotion as he thanked General Harrington, commander of the British troops in Constantinople, for protection and begged the general to make it clear that he was not abdicating.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—News of the departure of the sultan under British protection created the most intense interest in official circles today, which anxiously awaited the effect it might have on the Moslem population.
